

The evidence ledger and human decision replace the scalar reward of a Markov decision process: the environment emits observations, and a separate rejection authority, not a number, adjudicates them.